Admission Policy

The goal of Hiroshima University Graduate School Leader Education Program: TAOYAKA Program for Creating a Flexible, Enduring, Peaceful Society is to foster students to be leaders who will support a multicultural-coexistence society. With the collaboration and cooperation of educational research institutions at home and abroad, TAOYAKA Program offers a deep understanding of regional cultures and societies nurtured in various ways through time and space. Based on this, students will find and study the most advanced science and technology necessary to conquer issues faced by these regions. TAOYAKA Program, a five-year Ph. D. program, has been implemented to foster independence, the ability to execute, multilateral thinking, and creativity-features needed in leaders who support a multicultural-coexistence society.

General Selection

The Program aims to train students to gain greater understanding of regional societies and cultures, develop skills and technology for resolving problems in disadvantaged regions based on their understanding, and implement their achievements in such regions. Through this training, the Program plans to develop global leaders who, through close cooperation with regional communities, contribute to the formation of societies founded on multicultural existence. In this spirit, the Program seeks students with the following qualifications.

1. Students who hope to contribute to social development by acquiring cross-disciplinary knowledge and skills.
2. Students with interest in cultures and problems in disadvantaged regions, who hope to contribute to their development.
3. Students who want to become leaders and participate in communities on the regional and international levels.
4. Students who are strongly motivated and possess the drive to take action and take responsibility and the capabilities to contribute actively and exercise leadership in society.

Transfer Admission into 3rd year

A transfer admission examination will be administered for graduate students wishing to transfer into TAOYAKA Program from the 3rd year of a five-year Ph. D. course (the 1st year of a doctoral course).

TAOYAKA Program seeks the following qualities in students to be admitted as transfer students.

1. That they have the expertise and techniques necessary to practice onsite innovation.
2. That they have an understanding of the vision of onsite team projects conducted by cross-disciplinary student teams.
3. That they have a high degree of knowledge regarding peaceful and multicultural coexistence.
