

The 275th IDEC Asia Seminar
Graduate School for International Development and Cooperation
Hiroshima University

Partition in the Subcontinent: The Imaginary South Asia, Manipulative States, Nostalgia and Ever-contested Identity

Partition in 1947 between India and Pakistan has long been a subject of discussion in the 'South Asian' scholarship, especially among the Indian scholars with some share in the Pakistani scholars. This paper would be identifying different aspects of partition: the cartographic reconfiguration in the global academia; the emergence of manipulative state machines in different regions; the nostalgia in the literary products and a series of identity construction processes that are ever-changing and ever-contesting. These aspects are mutually exclusive and often the ruthless consequences of partition are solely carried by the respective people from different nation and are not negotiated on any common ground.

Date: July 30 (Wednesday), 2014
Time: 13:30-15:00 pm
Venue : IDEC 405 Room (4F)
Speaker: Manas K Chowdhury
Jahangirnagar University, Bangladesh

Brief biography

Manas K Chowdhury [pen name: ManoshChowdhury] teaches social anthropology in Bangladesh. He has also taught several programs including photojournalism and media studies. A fiction writer in Bengali, he also served as an honorary editor of an art quarterly in Bangladesh. A doctorate from Hiroshima University, he is currently a professor and chair in the department of anthropology at Jahangirnagar University.

Language: English

Coordinator: TOGAWA, Masahiko; E-mail to fakir@hiroshima-u.ac.jp