ILRI Project in Burkina Faso aims to protect poor livestock owners against drought

ILRI (International Livestock Research Institute) is a leading international research organization in livestock research and development. ILRI is currently working on the development of index-based livestock insurance in Burkina Faso. The project aims to protect poor livestock owners against drought by providing them with a form of insurance that is based on the weather. The insurance is based on the weather index, which is a measure of the amount of rainfall. The insurance is based on the weather index, which is a measure of the amount of rainfall.
